Silver Spoon and After Lenore Nir

Lenore Nir's happily-married, university-educated parents provided love and comfort for Lenore and her two brothers in Toronto, Canada. Her home was strongly Zionist, and after university, she moved to Israel, married there, raised three children, and became a U.S. Embassy press translator in Tel Aviv and a Windsor Daily Star correspondent. In 1991, Lenore and her husband followed a son and daughter to Toronto. Tension erupted. Recovery from a suicide attempt was slow in the psychiatric ward of a teaching hospital. Her thick journals offer an astounding portrait of hospital life. Five years of daily swimming and walking brought recovery. Luckily, her diabetes required this. Divorced, she moved back to Israel in 2003. Living contentedly near the Mediterranean Sea, she enjoys the sea and the seashore every day.
