COPYRIGHTED The Norwegian drawn work which is called (H ardanger) has a large circle of friends in America and is not entirely new. A ges ago in Persia the ladies worked on fine and rare materials, with silk, these beautiful embroideries. To our grandmothers, also, this was not a new work, but it did not have the pronounced character of today, and in connection with other drawn work it was varied with curved damask-like stitches, and was known in Italy asP unto-T agliato and Punto-R ialto. .T he present work was first executed inN orway, a county on the southeast coast, hence the name. As curved lines are excluded from the technic only articles appropriate for Norwegian draw work (H ardanger) are chosen, such as curtains, bedspreads, sofa pillows, center pieces, doilies, shirtwaists, collars, etc.
