With these books, students will visit beehives, ant colonies, coral reefs, tide pools, caves, and the deep sea. This series is specially designed to touch upon several elementary school curriculum corollaries, including earth science and life science. It also incorporates social studies corollaries, in terms of how communities work together and how activity and behavior depend on the natural environment. Breathtaking photographs will capture the attention of children and ensure that they will want to go on these field trips again and again.
