Upon taking office, President Barack Obama pledged to change the dynamics of America's adversarial relationship with the Islamic world. Just seven years earlier, the terrorist attacks on September 11 had shattered the American sense of security like never before; and further damaged the tenuous relationship with the Islamic world.

The American administration was wholly unprepared to respond to terrorist attacks of such devastating proportions. The shockwaves that reverberated across the nation diverted the American public's attention away from their government's inconsistent and morally ambiguous negotiating tactics. On the other side of the globe, the Islamic world asserted that American support for Israel was in fact the cause of horrible acts of terror. What is the origin of this glaring confusion? Could Israel truly be the cause of Islamic terrorism? In The Islamic Tsunami: Israel and America in the Age of Obama, author David Rubin uncovers the true nature of Islam: a dangerous, violent ideology that strives for world domination through terrorism, as well as what Rubin calls non-violent aggression. Rubin uncovers the reason why Islam chooses terror over peace and explores Israel and America's vital roles in combating the rampant spread of Islam throughout the world. This groundbreaking book explains why the rise of Obama has been so unsettling for the U.S. Israel relationship. Examining the constantly evolving and often uneasy relationship between Christians and Jews with an eye on the future, The Islamic Tsunami merges history with current events to create a complete and intuitive analysis of the historically troubled trichotomy between Judaism, Christianity, and Islam. With contributions from the Founding Fathers and the ancient but relevant biblical sources, David Rubin delivers a powerful and lucid battle plan for confronting the Islamic threat to our civilization; a bold strategy that will halt the Islamic tsunami once and for all.

All net proceeds from the sale of The Islamic Tsunami: Israel and America in the Age of Obama, will go to the Shiloh Israel Children's Fund, an organization dedicated to easing the trauma of children who have been victims of terrorist attacks. Established by David Rubin after he and his son were wounded in a terrorist attack, the not-for-profit Fund also helps to rebuild the biblical heartland of Israel.
